

ISLAND GOVERNOR ESCAPES GUNMEN

Start Return Flight

British Imperial Airways' "Pick-a-Back" plane, pictured above as it came into a landing at Port Washington, New York, took off today for Montreal, Canada, en route to Southampton, Eng., on the eastward half of its round trip survey flight over the Atlantic. The plane, with Capt. Donald C. Bennett at the controls, will make refueling stops at Montreal, Botwood, Newfoundland; Horta, Azores, and Lisbon.

Swimmer Falls Short Of Goal

VENICE, Cal., July 25.—(UP)—The fiddling swimmer, Paul Chotteau, failed today to achieve a 56-mile swim from Santa Barbara island to the mainland, but he established a new long-distance record in open water.

When taken from the water at 9:50 a. m., he had covered roughly 53 miles in 45 hours and four minutes when exhaustion overtook him.

At Santa Monica hospital, where he was taken, it was reported Chotteau was in good physical shape, although "tuckered out."

Chotteau, 40-year-old member of the 1924 French Olympic swimming team, ducked under a breaker and launched his long paddle from Santa Barbara island at 12:46 p. m. last Saturday. He was accompanied in small boats by amateur athletic union officials who saw to it that he received no aid.

Wife Problem Is Solved

MATAWAN, N. J., July 25.—(UP)—Judson Van Arsdale had a new wife today and he expected to have one less housekeeper soon.

He made his choice last night between the two women who came in answer to his advertisement in a matrimonial agency magazine. Both of them had been living harmoniously in his cottage for a month, sharing the housework and cooking while he compared their work and made up his mind.

He said he liked them both and they both loved him so it was with some reluctance that he took Mrs. May Myers, formerly of Washington, D. C., to the First Baptist church to have Rev. Garrett Detweiler marry them. He chose her because she was the best cook.

Murder Suspect Expects Freedom

MODESTO, Cal., July 25.—(UP)—So sure is William Blair, 33, that he will be acquitted of a Paragould, Arkansas murder charge, that he today expressed willingness to waive extradition provided Arkansas officers would guarantee him a return ticket to California when he is freed of the charge, and pay him wages for the time lost while he is in custody.

Blair was arrested at Empire Saturday on a telegraphic warrant from Paragould authorities.

Plane Hits Crowd; 37 Die

DEATH TOLL MAY MOUNT

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 25.—(UP)—The army plane that crashed into a crowd, missing President Alfonso Lopez and his entourage by only 65 feet, killed 37 persons and injured more than 100, it was estimated today.

Workers still were retrieving charred parts of bodies from the field where the plane fell, after spewing the crowd with a column of flaming gasoline.

Others May Die

Many of the wounded were in a grave condition and it was feared that the death toll would exceed 40. The government decreed a period of national mourning.

The plane was piloted by Lieut. Cesar Abadia Estrella, a dare devil who previously had been suspended six months for recklessness in flight. He was stunting at a 200 foot altitude over a crowd of 20,000. He swooped down over the Presidential stand, where the President, President-elect Eduardo Santos, and diplomats of several countries were reviewing the military display.

Struck Aerial

Spectators said the plane struck the aerial of a portable radio station. It burst into flames in the air and came down behind the reviewing stand with its propeller still spinning.

It struck the ground from an angle and cut a path through human bodies for more than 50 feet. Flames shot out in all directions from the wreckage.

The right wing of the plane bounced along the ground and came to rest at the foot of the stairway to the Presidential stand. The President and his companions threw themselves on the floor.

Rescues Attempted

Several persons charged into the fire to make rescues. A two year old child stood for an instant, enveloped in flames. The mother, already critically burned, ran deeper into the fire to the child's side. The baby was dead. An uninjured man dragged the mother from the fire but she died before she could be placed in an ambulance.

Another man ran into the fire and dragged the pilot's body away. His was the first body recovered. A picture of his one year old son fell from his pocket as he was lifted into an ambulance.

Opposed Stunting

Only a few minutes before the crash, President-elect Santos had told the minister of war: "I am opposed to aerial maneuvers above crowds because I remember the tragedy that I witnessed in the airfield of Passy, near Paris, in the early days of aviation, when an airplane cut off the head of Minister of War Bataux."

Abadia, who was 27, had been conspicuous in the air maneuvers for several minutes before the crash. He had told colleagues before he went aloft that he was especially anxious to demonstrate his valor "because on my behavior today depends my promotion as captain."

O'Daniel In Easy Victory

DALLAS, Tex., July 25.—(UP)—W. Lee O'Daniel, the overwhelming Democratic choice for governor of Texas, took one look today at telegrams and letters stacked on the table at his home in Fort Worth and announced that he would take his family on a vacation.

Astonished by the whims of politics at which profession he is a novice, O'Daniel, the 46-year-old flour salesman, was not prepared for what happened. The nomination is tantamount to election.

Great Fun

O'Daniel's measure was full. He had great fun. So did the voters who flocked to his campaign speeches which were heralded by a hill billy band, radio crooning and a type of political buffoonery that was unique.

Judge Frees Boy Pirates

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., July 25.—(UP)—Juvenile Judge Roy B. Maxey today sentenced to Preston reformatory the three high school youths who took the yacht Tira on an adventure cruise to Mexico—then suspended the sentence.

Suspension, the judge said sternly, was on condition the boys go to church, refrain from smoking and alcohol, and refrain from writing stories about their trip that ended in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, 2000 miles from Santa Cruz, when they were forced to seek shelter from a storm.

CORRIGAN FLIES—AS PASSENGER—TO LONDON

PLANS TOUR OF U. S. ON RETURN

LONDON, July 25.—(UP)—Douglas Corrigan, who flew the Atlantic in a $900 airplane, arrived by airplane, as a passenger, from Dublin today for a brief visit to London during which he hopes to see the king and queen.

Corrigan landed at Croydon airport and left in an American embassy automobile, to be the guest of American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy. He said he had no particular plans.

Heads Home Saturday
Corrigan, after lunch at the embassy, said he would leave for Dublin Wednesday night and for the United States on Saturday aboard the Manhattan.

"After that, I have no fixed plans," he said, "but when I get back to the United States I shall be open to accept any offers I can get such as lecture tours, vaudeville and films."

"I have received hundreds of congratulatory messages from the United States and civic invitations from all over the country. At the moment it is my intention to accept some of those as soon as I have seen some of the Irish in Brooklyn."

Likes San Antonio
"I probably will start from Boston, working my way south, and will include Philadelphia and Boston. I'd particularly like to call on San Antonio, Tex., where I worked in the flying game for six years."

"I heard they are getting up a fund to buy me a new plane but I wired them not to do it."

Has His Old Clothes
"I do not deserve it. I had no intention of attempting a deliberate record flight—this one was an accident, you know, and I hope it will not happen again."

Corrigan was wearing a blue check sports coat, flannel slacks and new shoes, all bought in Dublin, but he said:

"The old clothes I flew over in are being fixed up and I will wear them when I step off the boat in New York."

Egg-Throwing Mate Is Halted

Santa Ana officers were reminded of the slap-stick comedy days of the movies yesterday when called to a local home by the housewife there. She told officers N. C. Nelson and Ralph Pantuso her husband had been throwing eggs at her.

The officers were informed also that she defended herself by hurling pots and pans at him. Police advised them to see the district attorney about their asserted marital difficulties.

PLEA OF S. A. PLUMBER WILL BE HEARD TODAY IN COURT

Superior court was scheduled to hear, late today, the complaint of Fred Reif, Santa Ana plumber, who seeks a writ of mandate against Newport Beach officials to compel renewal of his license to operate in that city.

Reif sued the Newport Beach examining board for plumbers and City Clerk Frank Rinehart, charging that he take a new examination before the board before they will renew his license. The Newport Beach ordinance does not provide for such reexamination, he claims.

Fee Is Refused

Reif obtained his license in Newport Beach after passing an examination last December 15, he states. The license, like all others, expired last June 30. Just prior to that date he applied for renewal and tendered the $100 fee. The fee was refused and the renewal in progress. The numerous attractions of the garden in unusual shrubs, vines and flowers also provided a point of interest for many.

He obtained a court order requiring the defendant officials to appear today before Superior Judge Robert McIntosh, of Downeyville, temporarily presiding here. The defendants must show cause why Reif's complaint should not be granted.

PLAYS DETECTIVE; MAN IS ARRESTED

Detective work done by Homer Edwards at the Edwards service station, 2064 South Main, resulted in the arrest of Victor E. Wilkens, 31, employee of the county surveyor's office, Route 2, Orange, on a burglary charge Saturday afternoon.

During the past several months, Edwards told Detective Lieutenant Charles Wolford and Officer Tom Kinney, he has lost approximately $140 from his cash register. Recently, after Ed Hennessey, 2064½ South Main, noticed Wilkens tampering with the cash register, according to allegations, Edwards took the serial number of the bills in the register.

Saturday, after the officers arrested Wilkens, they found the bills which Edwards showed were his, in Wilkens' possession. Wilkens assertedly admitted he theft Saturday but denied ever stealing anything before.

BRITAIN TAKES CHIEF ROLE IN PEACE MOVE

ALL EUROPE'S STATUS GIVEN

Editor's Note: Great confusion has been apparent not only in news dispatches, but in European foreign offices themselves, as to the actual truth of a newly active, and obviously important diplomatic situation. Correspondents of the United Press in the key European capitals spent the week-end finding out exactly what the situation is. The first of two installments of their dispatches follow, with a general lead by Webb Miller, war and diplomatic correspondent who has been at the center of every European crisis for nearly 20 years.

BY WEBB MILLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1938, by United Press)

LONDON, July 25.—(UP)—Great Britain is taking the leading role in a general effort by European powers to prevent the minority problem in central Europe from embroiling the entire continent in a war.

An unexpected German gesture in the interests of peace last week brought a measure of optimism into discussions.

See August Crisis

But this optimism is based largely on the desire for peace rather than a conviction that peace is assured. The fact is that today European statesmen are looking forward to a crisis of the greatest gravity during August, the 20th anniversary of the World War.

Stated simply, it was understood that a prime objective of Great Britain—in the person of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain—was to provide a sort of diplomatic cushion to take the shock of the expected crisis.

Curb For Discard

It was expected that there would be a complete and dangerous deadlock, for a time at least, between the Czechoslovak government and leaders of the German minority in Czechoslovakia.

The aim of Great Britain, particularly, was to make sure that this deadlock did not spread discord to all Europe.

Present British diplomatic efforts as regards Germany go back to the beginning of this year when Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador at Berlin, and Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, began talks which it was hoped might be preliminary to negotiations for a friendly understanding between Britain and Germany and might even lead to discussion of colonial concessions to Germany.

Talks End Abruptly

The seizure of Austria by Germany and the Czechoslovak crisis of May 21 ended these talks abruptly and completely.

Britain and Germany were drawn farther apart then before. Britain reluctantly strengthened her alliance with France, she consented to full army, navy and air force staff co-operation with France. Her leaders, in speeches in parliament, gave what was taken to be plain warning that much as Britain wanted peace, she would be drawn almost inevitably on France's side, into any war which, started between Czechoslovakia and Germany, spread to include Czechoslovakia's allies, France and Russia.

Delay Finally Altered

During all these weeks the Czechoslovak government perfected a minorities statute intended for passage through parliament. Even today, the text of this statute on which hinges the entire minorities problem is not known officially. There has been delay after delay. For a time it looked as though leaders of the German and other minorities would not even see it until it was presented to parliament.

Now, however, that delay has been altered from a dangerous one to a hopeful one by the sudden move of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany.

Last Monday, Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, Hitler's personal adjutant, had a secret two hour talk with Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary. Next day Halifax left, as minister in attendance, with King George for his state visit to Paris. In Paris Halifax had talks with Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet. On Friday, while Halifax was in Paris, Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, German ambassador, and a long talk with Chamberlain. Wiedemann told Halifax that Hitler was eager to improve British-German relations and hoped for a bloodless solution of the minorities problem.

(Tomorrow's installment in The Register will tell of the efforts to prevail upon both Czechoslovakia and France, as Czechoslovakia's ally, to go as far as possible in satisfying the German minority in Czechoslovakia, and other details of the general situation).

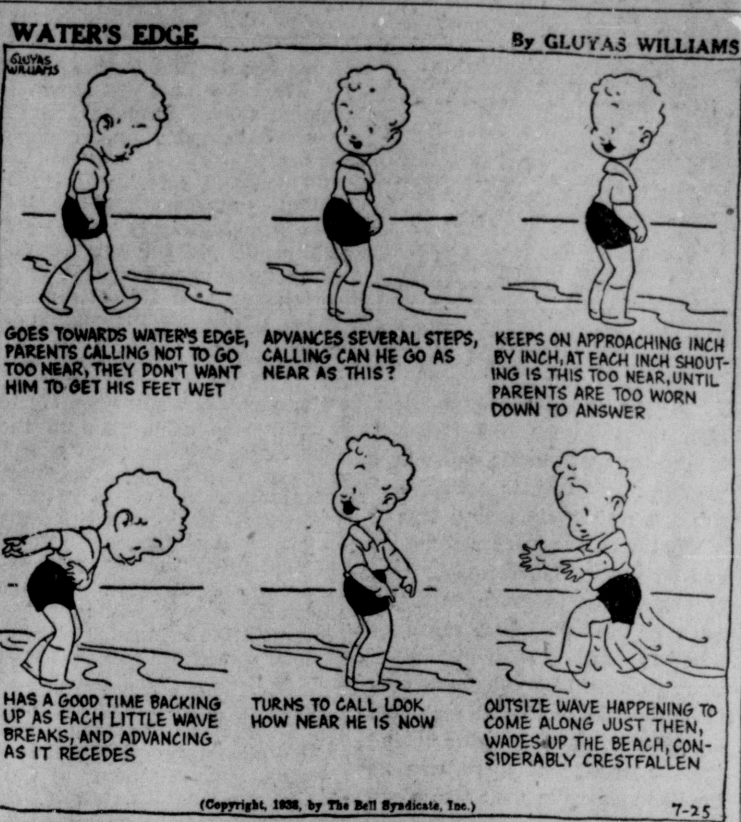

Commission To Be Named Tonight

NEWPORT BEACH, July 25.—In accordance with statutes regulating that body, members of the city planning commission will be appointed at a special session of the city council scheduled for this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the city hall.

Re-appointment of members was necessary to clarify records which failed to be made with the present appointments. Emphasis was also placed on the necessity of establishing a legal status for the group eliminating any possible technicality which might be revealed in case the proposed September bond election for civic improvement takes place and is carried.

ORCHESTRA AND CHORUS PLAN CONCERT IN ANAHEIM THURSDAY

Officials of the federal music project today announced the program scheduled for presentation Thursday evening at the Greek theatre in Anaheim.

The concert is fourth in the summer open-air series sponsored by the Anaheim recreation commission. The federal symphony orchestra and chorus are to combine in a program providing entertainment of the highest order, it was stated.

Despair of Peasants

The orchestra, conducted by Leon Eckles, will be heard in the extremely Oriental "March Slave," by Tschakowsky, a score of magnificent scope depicting in an amazing human document the despair of the Russian peasants under the harsh Imperial regime. The music leads into the old Russian Imperial hymn in a gorgeous characterization of sombre eloquence and mighty lamentation.

Von Weber's overture to the opera, "Der Freischutz," one of the most novel, poetic and beautiful overtures that musical art has ever produced, was announced at the opening selections. Other numbers of equal importance are Sinding's "Rustle of Spring," and the Farandole movement from Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" suite. This movement takes its theme from an old French Yuletide carol.

Chorus To Sing

The federal chorus, under Dorothy Page Harper's direction, is to sing a group of songs in the following order: "Gloria," by Buzzi Pecchia; "Am Meer" (By the Sea) composed by Schubert and taken from a group known as "The Swan Songs," based on poems by Heine. "Am Meer" is one of the best known of this album and is strikingly characterized by spontaneity and haunting melody. The last in the song cycle is "Mountains," ranking equally in popularity with the familiar "Trees," both compositions by Rasbach.

The concert is scheduled to begin promptly at 8 p. m.

ORANGES IN BAG HELD POPULAR

REDLANDS, July 25.—Based upon the satisfactory results of its supervised experimental shipments, the Mutual Orange Distributors is continuing shipments of citrus fruits in special consumer package bags.

First shipment of this nature was made June 17, when three cars to check the consumer reaction to the new package. The Mutual Orange Distributors, affiliate of the MOD, to New York City. Each car contained 6706 mesh bags; and each bag contained an average of one and one-half dozen oranges of average size.

Representatives were on hand in New York upon arrival of the cars to check the consumer reaction to the new package.

Stores Report Favorably
In commenting on its plans, the cooperative announced today: "Our experimental shipments proved highly satisfactory. The first three cars sold in New York at a price 25 cents higher than box fruit. The fruit arrived in perfect condition and met instant consumer acceptance. Consumers interviewed personally by our representatives stated the fruit in bags was fresher, had its original shape and was not flattened out as is the case where fruit is packed tight in wooden containers."

"Retail stores reported favorably from the standpoint of having no waste. The consumers readily purchased a bag rather than picking over fruit displayed loose and leaving the poorer fruit at a loss to the retailer. The retailer benefited through this fact and also because of not having to supply a consumer package."

"The bag contains an average of one and one-half dozen of oranges of average size. The usual purchase made by a consumer, where the fruit is not in a consumer package, is from one-half to one dozen oranges. Bag sales, therefore, result in benefit to both grower and retailer, because of the increased consumption brought about by increased unit sales. This is something greatly to be desired in a year of heavy production such as the present one."

Christian Science

This verse from the Psalms: "Teach me thy way, O Lord: I will walk in thy truth; unite my heart to fear thy name," was the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Truth" on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist.

Among the Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon were the words of Isaiah: "I the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thee hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; To open the blind eyes to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house"; and the words of Paul to Timothy: "Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. Consider what I say; and the Lord give thee understanding in all things."

Included in a correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, was the statement: "Teach your students the omnipotence of Truth, which illustrates the impotence of error. The misunderstanding, even in a degree, of the divine All-power destroys fear, and plants the feet in the true path—the path which leads to the house built without hands 'eternal in the heavens'."

Construction of the building is being done at a cost of $64,000, with the Olive grammar school district as the sponsor and with the aid of the federal government. Plans are being made to furnish the small room which will house the county library branch. It is expected that book shelves, tables, chairs and paper racks will be made by furniture workers at WPA projects.

SERIAL STORY

MYSTERY AT THE LAZY R

BY CLARKE NEWLON

COPYRIGHT, 1938
NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
NIKKI JEROME, heroine; blond, popular, is engaged to six-foot, black-haired STEVE MALLORY, hero; who is accompanying her on a trip to Nikki's aunt and uncle on a Wyoming dude ranch. Nikki's father, PETER JEROME, is a wealthy New York jewel merchant.

Yesterday: The first night at the dude ranch becomes strangely sinister when Nikki overhears Sarto and Bancroft plotting about her.

CHAPTER IV

NIKKI and Steve stood silently in the shadow of the shed after the two men had vanished toward the ranch house. Steve was waiting for Nikki to speak, but she was lost in startled thoughts.

What was the "Jerome affair" and why was Bancroft so afraid of her getting in touch with her father? What did Sarto mean by that half-finished sentence? Nikki was accustomed to having men interested in her. Several had been, with varied thoughts behind their interest, but there was an implied menace in the Sarto blend of innuendo. Steve finally spoke.

"Nikki, this business has gone far enough," he said. "I want to know who Bancroft and his unpleasant friend are and what you are doing mixed up in their business, or they in yours or whatever the devil is going on," he wound up, bewildered by his own words.

"They seem to know father, all right, don't they?" said Nikki, mostly to herself.

"Nikki!" Steve was almost exploding. "You said that Bancroft was an old friend. I don't believe it. I don't believe you ever saw him before you got on the train. Anyway, if he is an old friend, I can't say so much for your taste." Nikki turned to him.

"Steve, believe me, I don't know anything more about all this than you do, at least not much more. And I can't tell you anything right now. Please trust me, just for a little while longer, won't you? It's something I can't... well, I just can't talk about now."

"You mean it's something you can't tell me?" Steve's tone was half incredulous, half accusing. "Darling, it's something I can't tell anyone just now. Besides, there's nothing to tell. Please trust me."

"I'm to trust you, but you don't trust me. I'm to stand by and see what happens when the girl I'm to marry tangles up with a couple of strange thugs she won't even tell me about. And they're thugs if I ever saw any. What am I supposed to do? Pretend I don't know what's going on, or don't you care?"

"Of course I care."

"Well, you don't act like it."

Steve was thoroughly angry, but Nikki could not tell him of the strange meeting on the train or of the dressing case full of money, so they parted for the night unhappily.

THE next day about noon Uncle Jim came driving up to the ranch in his prized station wagon with a gray-suited stranger whom he introduced as Donald Fiske.

Mr. Fiske has been visiting the Gerleys every summer. Uncle Jim explained, "and when he arrived this morning he found the whole kit and caboodle of 'em down with the mumps. So he decided to come over and visit with us."

Fiske was a smallish man, thin-lipped and narrow-eyed, who nodded pleasantly at the introductions and gave his home as Chicago on the Lazy R's register. An odd type, Nikki thought, to be vacationing on a dude ranch, but recalled that there were other odd types there beside Fiske. Uncle Jim put him in one of the small cabins.

The day was rather dispiriting. Nikki wished desperately she would hear from her father and watched unhappily Steve's obvious avoidance. In the afternoon he took a rod and went a quarter of a mile back of the ranch house to the pool that had been formed when Uncle Jim dammed the creek, but returned soon and said, moodily, they weren't biting.

That night she lay in bed hearing every sound of the ranch as it drifted off to sleep by quietening degrees, but slumber would not come to her, and finally she stepped out on the balcony which opened on to her room.

A pale, yellow moon rode high in the sky with one guardian star poised brightly watchful. A thin cloud drifted mistily, lazily by, like a wisp of veil discarded by a languid lady. Far out in the night a coyote sang a mournful hymn to the moon-lit darkness and its lonesome notes rose with the faint breeze.

A dog barked shrilly from the corral and then the night was broken by the sharp report of a rifle shot. Nikki started, and then her eyes went to the scattered cabins below her in an effort to trace the sound.

THERE were no lights, but in the interwoven shadows traced by the cabins and the trees, Nikki suddenly saw a dark figure dart across a path of light. It was a man and she saw him hesitate, look quickly about him and then run swiftly to the cabin that Bancroft and Sarto occupied. Just before the cabin's shadows swallowed him, some gesture or movement caught her eye with a surge of recognition.

It's Sarto, she thought, it couldn't be anyone else. But why? Before she could even hazard a guess at her own question, she caught the clamor of voices below and her uncle's:

"What in tarnation is goin' on around here?"

Nikki threw a dressing robe over her pajamas and hurried down the steps just as her Uncle Jim came out on the veranda.

"What are you doin' here, Nikki?" he asked. "You hear that shot, too?"

"I was awake and heard it," she answered, not mentioning the figure she had seen darting among the shadows.

There was a light among the cabins now.

"That's Fiske's cabin," said Uncle Jim. "I'll go out and see—Nikki, you better stay here," he broke in as she prepared to follow, but just then Fiske stepped out of his door.

HE was holding a rifle in one hand and in the other was a little wad of cleaning rags. He walked up to the pair on the porch and said apologetically:

"I'm awfully sorry. I was cleaning my gun and I guess it's another case of just not knowing the thing was loaded. Bullet went through the floor. That's what comes of not handling firearms enough to keep on familiar terms with them."

Some of the men from the bunkhouse were out by this time, but most of the guests had slept on undisturbed, or else a shot at a ranch in the heart of Wyoming didn't appear startling to them.

Fiske apologized again for his carelessness and said that he guessed he would finish the task in the morning.

Nikki wanted to inquire if he usually cleaned his guns in total darkness, for she could have sworn there wasn't a light in the cabin before the shot sounded. But she remained silent and watched while her uncle accompanied Fiske back to his cabin and the men returned to the bunkhouse.

Then she glanced at the cabin occupied by Bancroft and Sarto. It was dark and quiet and all too peaceful looking.

BY THE BAT BOY

For two weeks now I'll be pinch hitting for the one and only "Round Eddie West. I'm sort of rusty at the old game. Let's see, the last time I sat on a sports desk was way back in 1916. Plenty of water and other things have rolled under the old bridge since those days. New champions have come and gone and new champions are in the making.

But I can't see much difference between the champs of today and those of days in the dim past. Without exactly divulging my age I can recall the days when Frank Gehrig was the big boy on the mat. His match with one Hackenschmidt sticks out in my mind as probably the greatest battle on the mat in all time. Frank always has been my idea of a real champion. He took on all comers. He wrestled 160 matches and lost but 6, winning the other 154.

Then I remember Farmer Burns, another wrestler, who was a real pal of mine in Omaha. Farmer once gave me a Bible and I have always wondered whether he thought all newspapermen needed them for reference or for their spiritual betterment. Farmer probably had the greatest neck muscles of any man I ever knew. I remember when he won $10 from Ring Lardner on a bet that he couldn't be strangled with a rope. Frank was strung from a rafter in the old police station in Omaha and expanded his neck muscles and dangled for nearly a minute before he was cut down and collected the $1000.

And speaking of Ring Lardner I remember the day he and I had a little fistfight on the White Sox special when it pulled into Omaha and I was just cub enough to resent being asked to act as errand boy for the big Chicago sports writer. We later met in the old press club in Chicago and buried the hatchet.

And then speaking of Chicago I recall the days when Packey and Charley White and Young Ahearn trained at Charley White's gymnasium on State street. Mike Gibbons occasionally used to drift in too and then he and Packey put on some swell battles that never saw the light of publicity.

I remember going from Chicago to St. Paul to see Mike Gibbons and Young Ahearn in one of the shortest battles on record. They met in the St. Paul auditorium and believe you me it was crowded. It was close and stuffy and the smoke was so heavy one could hardly see the ring. I was interested in that fight. I had sparred with Mike Gibbons in St. Paul many times when I lived there and it was like old home-coming week to me. I bet my shirt and my new son's shoes on Mike and 20 seconds after the bell rang Ahearn was stretched out on the canvas, felled by one of the hardest and shortest right crosses I have ever seen.

In that same era I met and became acquainted with the great Chief Meyers who was the ace catcher for the St. Paul team and later went to the Giants and made good in a big way. He always was, and still remains, my idea of a high class catcher. He was a sorta tough guy like this Bomo Koral who watches for the Santa Ana all-stars. He knew all the tricks and angles and when he was playing baseball he was immune to anything else. We remember one game in which St. Paul was playing its deadly rival, Minneapolis. The score was 5 to 4 in favor of the Saints in the first half of the fourth. Two were out. A near cloudburst came out of the skies. The umpire called the game off, but Chief Meyers refused to accept the edict of the ump and wouldn't leave the field, insisting on playing the third out. He was so obstinate in his refusal that his teammates joined him and the Minneapolis Millers insisted on quitting before it could be called an official game. The game never was finished but I saw one of the greatest riots ever staged on a ball field. And these mud battles in colleges now days are pink tea compared to that one. More later.

Pat Collins, crack second sacker for the Walnut mads, was a member of the Orange Lionette team last season. Either Lois Terry, or the dependable Bobby Wakeham are scheduled to start on the mound for the Lionettes, Coach Vic Baden announced.

ORANGE LIONETTES PLAY HOME TONIGHT

The Orange Lionettes tangle with the Diamond Walnut Girls, champions of Lovola field, tonight in a return engagement. The exhibition game will be played at the Orange city park diamond and is scheduled to get under way at 8 o'clock.

Jurich Favored To Beat Milligan

MANCHESTER, Eng., July 25.—(UP)—Jackie Jurich of San Jose, Calif., was a heavy favorite to defeat Phil Milligan of Oldham, Eng., in their 10 round flyweight fight at the Bellvue Greyhound track tonight.

Jurich was knocked out last month by Benny Lynch of Scotland, who was worn of his crown when he failed to make the 112 pound vlass limit.

British boxing followers believed Jurich would have an easy time tonight, although it is expected to be a good fight because the British pugilist outpointed Jim Warrack of Ireland, and knocked out Tut Whalley of London, two of Lynch's most serious British rivals.

Hollywood Park's Gross 2 Millions

INGLEWOOD, July 25.—Hollywood Park's gates were closed today on a successful 23 day meeting which grossed a $14,496,132 pari mutual handle and lured 542,514 cash customers through the turnstiles of the lavish new plant in this Los Angeles suburb.

The track received $1,319,690.64 and the state half that amount. With another million dollars or more from admissions and concessions, the track grossed approximately the $2,500,000 original cost of the spacious plant.

Binglin stables' Lisaroti, owned jointly by Bing Crosby and Lin Howard, won Saturday's Aloha Handicap, the $6000 added get-away feature. Whichever trailed the black South American charger by three and one-half lengths to place. Sweepstake was third.

Sam Snead Wins New Golf Title

CHICAGO, July 25.—(UP)—Sammy Snead, West Virginia professional and leading money winner of the 1938 gold campaign, is the new Chicago open golf champion.

He has shown the way to beat last, nervous Ralph Guldahl at medal play. Snead blazed into the lead of the $5000 open with a record 64 the first day and even Guldahl's magnificent comeback in the final round at Olympia fields yesterday couldn't shake him from it.

Snead's 54 hole total of 207, only one better than Guldahl's, increased his earnings by $1500.

Pip, Pip! And Cheerio, Henry Is Host To Britisher At Baseball

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, July 25.—(UP)—I did something very trite, very hackneyed, yesterday, something hundreds of sports-writers have done before me. I took an Englishman to a baseball game.

He was Frederick John Alastair Cameron, of London, of Eton, of Oxford. And—best of all—he was a man who had played "silly mid on" for notts against the Australians. That needs a bit of explaining, what? Quite right, cheerio, and pip pip! "Silly mid on" is a position in cricket. A "mid on" stands some 20 yards back of the batsmen, barehanded, to catch foul tips. The position is so called because only a "silly" fellow would stand so close. "Bloody well get your head knocked off unless you're awfully quick on your feet," Frederick John Alastair Cameron explained.

Further explanation: "Notts" is the abbreviation for Nottinghamshire, a county. To play cricket for a county—to play for Notts or Bucks or Lancs or for any of the other dozen or so counties—is to be a damned fine cricket player.

And to play against the Australians—well, that means you are an internationalist, which means you are tops.

I took Frederick John Alastair Cameron to the ball game because he wanted to see a baseball game; a desire that was born years ago when Babe Ruth was in England on a visit and batted against the best cricket bowlers.

"I pitched to the Babe fellow," Frederick John Alastair Cameron said, "and he smote the dickens out of the ball. Broke his bat, in fact, he hit it so hard. Stout beer drinker, too, that Ruth."

The Yankees and Chicago White Sox were playing when we entered the stadium.

"Oh, rounders, eh," he said. "Same thing we played at Eton."

A Chicago outfielder muffed a Texflax leaguer.

"Poor catch," he said, "let me miss that one at cricket and I would be barracked for a month."

I felt pretty bad because I had told Frederick John Alastair Cameron that the one thing he would like about baseball would be the fielding.

A few moments later Thornton Lee, Sox pitcher, threw wild to third.

"Bloody clumsy, that fellow, eh!" Cameron said. "I thought you said the Americans threw the ball so well."

The one thing that interested my guest was the "bowler" or pitcher. He wouldn't believe that a pitcher could throw anything but a hard, straight ball. I swore to him, almost on bended knee, that a pitcher could make the ball jump to the right, to the left, up, down, and in general behave in a crazy manner.

"You mean to tell me," he said, "that your bowlers can throw a googly without hitting the ground with the ball? Absurd. Ridiculous. I don't believe you."

When the crowd stood up for the seventh inning stretch, Cameron wanted his tea. Wanted it badly. He was plainly annoyed when we had to compromise with beer.

That's all there is to this story.

It doesn't make much sense, does it? If it doesn't it is a well written story, because my trip to a baseball game with an Englishman didn't make much sense, either. Cheerio!

HAWKEYE

Another last page is written. Another last day is here—Another turf record is broken. By Hawkeye, famed handicapper, see!

"Another season ends, and again I'm topped," chuckled the noted maestro of the turf. "Boy, I sure can pick 'em," he concluded modestly.

A check-up disclosed that this was indeed so, most profoundly so, and there were no dissenters. Hawkeye fans point proudly to his dazzling record as leading handicapper, bar none, and to the fact that Hawkeye fans always win, and aver that Friday and Saturday were merely a couple of rare exceptions, but that prove the rule when his estate plays, Elvira, Cloud and Empress Pelota, failed to score, through an error in timing.

The financial standing:

Original bankroll	$250
Bets lost	54
Bankroll to date	$141.30

SEEMS TO WORK

Mace Brown, Pirate relief hurler, says his best ball is his "hope" ball. "I just throw it and hope they don't hit it," is his explanation.

HORSES ARRIVE AT DEL MAR FOR TRACK OPENING FRIDAY

DEL MAR, July 25.—The parade of horse vans was on this morning at Del Mar Turf club across the San Dieguito river bridge they rumbled like army trucks going to the front in the big push. And out of their depths stepped a veritable host of horses.

Well over 300 head were bedded down tonight in the cool adobe barns. "Where the Turf Meets the Surf." A seven car train pulled into the siding, and head and tail the equine stars marched down the road to the able gate in a line one-quarter of a mile long. The race track was crowded with horses working, and the white rail was lined with the proverbial "birds" squinting at watches. Racing had come back to San Diego county.

Among recent arrivals were: Bill Pinegar with 17 head, including the horses of Miss Ethel Hill and E. Risken, and those of Neil McCarthy. In this lot were such as Delphinium, Morning Breeze, Dear Diary, Pokaway, Alex the Great, Home Loan, Mar Pal and others.

W. A. Thomas had eight head for himself and Mrs. A. M. Koewler, including Lady Bowman, Happy Bolivar and the good son of Man O' War, Over the Top. The Long Run stable had Marynell, Dolaway and two others. Raoul Walsh shipped in a most formidable string, including his great importation, Grand Manitou, Frexo and Mount Vernon. All these horses are well known both on this side of the big pond and the other.

The first of the Charles S. Howard string also arrived, numbering six horses. The rest will follow tomorrow and the next day. In the first shipment was the consistent winner, Indiantown, also Graven Maid, Rushing By, Lady Painter, Lady Jacqueline and Velox. His trainer reported that the great Seabiscuit would arrive early in the week.

J. A. Parsons came in with seven horses headed by the fine old campaigner, High Vote. Tommy Griffin had seven head with Fondosa, Oscar Otis, Primulus and four others. T. D. Grimes had four—Billie Bane, Enoch Borland, Infinite Lady and Routine. W. D. Baker had Rodney Pan and Deline Bank. H. S. Swift had four, headed by Wegaway and Our Caroline.

Hoiles, Robinson Win Golf Honors

Clarence Hoiles and A. W. Robinson, captured first honors in the best ball medal play sweepstakes at the Santa Ana Country Club on Saturday. Playing with one-fourth of their handicap Hoiles and Robinson shot a best ball of 73-5-63.

Second honors went to L. W. Bemis and Eddie Farnsworth who shot a best ball of 74-5-69.

The Sal Baca-Wilcox bout, originally was scheduled for several weeks ago but was postponed because of illness. In the semi-wind-up Badge Diaz, Ontario, fights Don Crawford, also of the Ebony club.

TED CHRISTY MEETS MORELLI THURSDAY

Ted Christy, the "Sunland Terror," will have almost two strikes against him next Thursday night when he meets Tony "Killer" Morelli in the top half of the double main event on the weekly wrestling card at the Orange County Athletic club.

Last week Morelli and Christy were on opposing sides in the team wrestling match and in the second fall Christy injured the Italian's leg so severely that he could not walk without the aid of a cane for two days. When he signed for the main event this week Morelli said that he planned to more than even the score.

In the second half of the double main event Cecil Magill of Long Beach meets "Bad Man" Ken Hollis from Abilene, Tex. Ken Hollis in the double main event will be for two out of three falls to a finish.

RUTH JUMP VICTOR IN PLATFORM DIVING

SANTA BARBARA, July 25.—(UP)—The 1938 senior women's national swimming and diving meet broke up today and pretty Katherine Rawls of Miami, Fla., departed with three new world records and four of the seven individual American swimming championships decided.

The slim brunette ended her sensational performances in the final program of the three-day competition by slipping more than two seconds off the 880-yard free style mark established by Lenore Knight Wingard at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., in 1935. She was clocked at 11 minutes, 32.2 seconds.

The Los Angeles Athletic club won the team title from the Women's Swimming association of New York city by a margin of 33 points to 31, with a stirring victory in the 300-meter medley relay.

In the third event, Ruth Jump of L.A.A.C. captured the platform title after weathering the threat of Marjorie Gestring, also of Los Angeles, and winner of the 10-foot springboard diving crown. Miss Jump scored 93.08 points to 91.92 for Miss Gestring.

Getting Results

The PAYOFF

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

This looks as though it might be the year for the southpaws in the Grand American Handicap, the world series of trapshooting.

A 14-year-old boy, a 70-year-old, a veteran field-shooter who had never brought down a clay pigeon before, a preacher, a railroad engineer, and an unemployed electrician have been winners in the past.

But never has a portside shooter been among them.

There are a half dozen or more left-handed candidates for the 1938 crown, however, who will command a lot of attention when the nation's best trapshooters meet at Vandalla, O., Aug. 22 to 26.

Rated as one of the five best shooters in the world today is Fred Etchen of Coffeyville, Kan., who managed the 1924 Olympic trapshooting team at Paris.

Also well liked is Spencer Olin, East Alton, Ill., professional, who several years ago at Vandalla led pros and amateurs alike in winning the doubles title with a score of 191 out of 200.

Herman Peterson of Dillon, Mont., another top-notch southpaw, was runner-up last fall in a world's championship all-round match at Orleans, Ind.

Carl Thacker, prominent Iowa marksman, opened the Grand American in 1937 by winning the open title in a field of leading pros and amateurs, making 200 straight kills.

Nor are the experts disregarding John Deroski of St. Paul, who has been averaging 97 per cent of his targets.

The outstanding dark horse among the portsideers is Horace Aldritt of Minneapolis. For years Aldritt shot right-handed, but not completely satisfied with the results he became a "switch-shooter." Since making the change he has averaged slightly more than 97 per cent.

Trips shooters aren't going to be too surprised this year if a left-handed shooter wins the Grand American Handicap. The southpaws are long overdue.

WASTED NO TIME

When you speak of longevity in baseball, don't forget Ted Lyons. At 33 the White Sox hurler is still taking his regular turn on the mound and were he with a club batting around the top of the heap it would be very much noticeable that there's plenty of stuff left in his ancient right arm.

Ray Schalk, now manager of the Indianapolis Indians of the American Association, recalls how the late Red Sox acquired Lyons in the spring of 1923. The Sox were in training at Marlborough, when Schalk went over to Waco one afternoon with a sports writer to visit some friends. Stopping at Baylor University, the scribe thought it might make a good story if Ray would warm up one of the college pitchers. The kid chosen was a law student named Ted Lyons, who never got to practice law.

He showed Schalk to much talent in that little warmup that he was signed to a Chicago contract and when school closed in June, Lyons reported to the Sox and has been with them ever since.

TIME WITH GEHRIG

It's hard to tell what Lou Gehrig is gaining by remaining in the New York Yankee lineup day after day, despite wounds and ailments which would bench less hardy individuals. He already has set a consecutive game record that will stand until they put fobots on the field instead of men—and the robots probably would break down before they hit the 2000 mark.

When Gehrig injured his right thumb a few days ago, Dr. Ben Muth Walsh, Yankee team physician, examined the wound and suggested that Gehrig have it X-rayed to determine if he had suffered a fracture.

"X-ray nothing!" the Iron Horse snorted. "I'll just shake this off, as I have the rest of 'em."

The man of medicine offered the bet professional advice he could muster, but he was ministering to the wrong patient.

And Mr. Gehrig, highly indignant, trotted off to first base the next day.

Tied In Ninth

Trailing by one run with two out in the ninth the Cubs tied the score when Stan Hack crossed the plate on a single by Carl Reynolds. Reynolds again saved the game in the 14th when he raced back against the centerfield wall and pulled down a long smash by Hank Leiber. The winning run was scored on Billy Jurges' single and Hack's double. Bill Lee, who beat the Giants on Saturday, scored his 13th victory in a relief role. The defeat dropped the Giants to four games behind the pace setting Pirates, and ended a most disastrous western trip during which they won 4 games and lost 9.

Pittsburgh kept up its swift pace by defeating the Boston Bees twice, 5-4, in 15 innings and 4-2 in seven innings, the nightcap being halted by the Sunday blue law. The Pirates have won 22 out of their last 27 games.

HOT PAGE SET BY PITTSBURGH IS MAINTAINED

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, July 25.—(UP)—Gabby Hartnett's clenched fist above head is the new symbol of the Chicago Cubs, who moved into the lead today to carry on their blazing comeback campaign.

The way the Cubs triumphed over the Giants Sunday before 35,075 at Wrigley field indicated that P. K. Wrigley's sudden shift in pilots to give the Bruins a "shot in the arm" had the desired result. The Cubs battled through 15 innings to conquer the Giants, 5-4, and beat Carl Hubbell, who had come into the game as a relief pitcher in the seventh.

Reds Divide

Cincinnati divided a doubleheader with the Phillies, winning the first game, 7-5, and losing the second, 5-1. Johnny Vandermeer was wild in the second game, and had to be taken out after he had walked four men in a row with two out in the third.

After nosing out the Dodgers, 5-4, in the first game, the Cardinals dropped the second game, 3-2. Jimmy Brown's single won the opener. Stainback's single, a walk and Durocher's single accounted for Brooklyn's winning tally in the nightcap.

The New York Yankees split even with the Chicago White Sox, beating them, 2-0, on two hits, and then collapsing in the eighth to lose the second game, 8-3. Thornton Lee held the Yanks to two hits but couldn't beat Lefty Gomez who allowed six.

Detroit broke its seven game losing streak with a double victory over the Athletics, 7-6 and 7-3. Hank Greenberg hit homer No. 29 with the bases loaded in the opener.

Washington clouted the St. Louis Browns, 11-1, after losing the opener, 4-2. Oral Hildebrand gave up only eight hits, getting McQuinn had a perfect day, getting "4 for 4."

The Red Sox and Indians were rained out.

Missionary Talks To Lions Club

LAGUNA BEACH, July 25.—At last night's meeting of the Laguna Beach Lions club, guest speaker was the Rev. R. W. Andrews, missionary for many years in Japan, now enjoying a brief vacation before his return to the Island Empire.

Rev. Mr. Andrews gave a vivid first-hand account of the attitude, aspirations and reactions of the Japanese people, during the present undeclared war in the Orient. His sidelights on Japanese life were listened to attentively by the 40 Lions present, and at the close of his address, Mr. Andrews was tendered the club's vote of thanks.

Musical interludes were provided by Lion Dan Grant, concert pianist de luxe, and Johnny Marnier, trumpeter par excellence. The first innings of a mock "trial" were held, with the verdict to follow next week's summing up of evidence. The "culprit," Lion Al Stricker, charged with "false pretenses," was loudly defended by Frank Wharton; but a massive body of "evidence," presented by prosecuting Lion John Gibson, will take some controverting, to judge by the lugubrious expression worn throughout the trial by Judge Leroy A. Walden.

Investigate Fatal Shooting

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, Mex., July 25.—(UP)—Police today investigated the slaying last night of Hermina Arbasta, 29 year old dancer, who was shot and killed by Salvador Ramirez, 30, a brother-in-law, as she completed a performance at a border night club. $68,125,000 SAVED BY NLRB

That the Metropolitan Water District, through favorable conditions obtained in financing its aqueduct construction through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has secured a saving amounting to more than $68,125,000 was pointed out today by Victor H. Rossett, president of the Farmers and Merchants National bank, and a member of the district's board of directors.

The major part of this saving, it was stated, is the financial benefit recently secured by the district through a refunding agreement with the R. F. C. whereby interest charges on $2,000,000 in aqueduct bonds have been reduced from five per cent to an average rate of four and one-eighth. The saving secured through the refunding agreement according to the controller's office of the district, will amount to $62,500,000 during the life of the bonds.

Another $5,625,000

"In addition to the major interest saving that has been secured through the refunding agreement with the R. F. C., the taxpayers and water users of the district have realized another saving of $5,625,000 through other favorable arrangements made in financing aqueduct construction through the R. F. C.," stated Rossett.

"The district obtained a large saving through an agreement with the R. F. C. by which the district has been permitted to deliver its bonds in relatively small blocks, as money was actually required to meet current obligations. If the district had disposed of its bonds through private sales, it would have been required to pay interest on all bonds sold beginning with the date of sale. But, by selling to the R. F. C., the district was permitted to deliver bonds only as the money was actually required, and thus was able to save large interest payments by these deferred deliveries."

Swastikas Ward Off Jap Bombs

International intervention in the Sino-Japanese war gets pretty involved at times, as is demonstrated by the presence of this huge swastika flag atop a Chinese military train which took German military advisers out the country at the insistence of the Japanese. The German strategists, who had been aiding the Chinese, were ordered out after Japan brought pressure on Adolf Hitler, her ally in an anti-Communist pact. Chinese spread the swastika on top of the train in Han-ko so the Japanese wouldn't make a mistake and bomb it.

That is what I was told by one of the leading authorities on the British trade union law when I asked him to explain the essential differences between labor legislation in Great Britain and the United States. For professional reasons he requested that his name not be used.

TRUCKMAN LIKE TAX REVISION

California truckmen and other vehicle operators licensed under the motor vehicle transportation license tax act, the so-called "truck tax," have been well pleased with a year of operation under changes in the act made by the 1937 legislature, the state board of equalization reports.

Almost as welcome as a reduction in the license fee from $25 to $5, was a change in the method of filing reports and paying the tax, board officials state.

Statement Unnecessary
Formerly licensees sent a sworn statement of monthly operations to the board which assessed the tax and notified the controller who collected the amount due from the operator.

Under the revised act the operator files his return with the board, his tax payment accompanying the report of operations and being payable to the controller to whom it is sent by the board. No sworn statement is required thus saving small operators the time and expense of visiting a notary.

A year of the revised act, according to William G. Bonelli, board member from this district, has resulted in improved efficiency in administering the act and much greater convenience to operators licensed under it.

Jimmie Fidler in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, July 25.—Idol Chatter: The lavishness of the "Marie Antoinette" premiere—contrasting with the obvious poverty of some of the onlookers—reminded me uncomfortably of the conditions depicted in the film. No love lost: Loretta Young and Annabella—but ladies seldom "get along" when they are working in the same picture. Isn't it odd that not one of the Yacht Club Boys owns a yacht? Hollywood incongruities: Pat O'Brien, in the costume of a priest, poring over a racing chart. Wardrobe workers at Warner Brothers swear that Wayne Morris is still growing—that he's an inch taller now than when he came to the studio. Best double for Cesar Romero is a bartender in one of Filmville's swankiest cafes. Somehow, that name, Millza Korjus, always sounds a bit boastful to me. Today's philosophy—from Carole Lombard—"It's easy to get credit in this town—when you no longer need it."

No organization in Hollywood is complete until Anita Louise is listed as an honorary member. Representative Americans: movie stars, who, with five or six months between pictures, always manage to wriggle out of jury duty. Bing Crosby never can remember lyrics—wonder if that's why he "boops" so much. Today's limerick: A gal who resided afar, undressed to become a great star. She cashed in on the fame and assumed a new name—becoming Miss Hedy Lamarr.

Between scenes on the set today, the director asked Frank Albertson, who is inordinately proud of his skill of slight-of-hand, to show the company some tricks. Frank gladly obliged—and swelled to the bursting point on the sugared comments of his audience. Then, from among the onlookers, stepped a technician named Walter Aker. With supreme nonchalance, he duplicated every trick which had been performed—and went on to others that left Frank gaping in amazement. Never have I seen a man more crushed than Mr. Albertson—who still does not realize that he was framed. Walter Baker used to be one of vaudeville's most famous magicians.

One notable fact about Hollywood—it never does anything in halves: witness the case of Robert Taylor. After nearly ruining his screen career by publicizing him as a "great lover," Metro-oldwyn-Mayer, terrified by his first mistake, is now swinging to the opposite extreme in its effort to convince the public that he is a rough-and-ready "he-man." He is playing one of the most virile roles in all literature in "Northwest Passage." The part, in itself, is sufficient contradiction for the mistaken "Don Juan" publicity. But Metro feels that it must make assurance doubly sure, and Bob is being tested in makeups that would disgrace the most slovenly tramp who ever bagged a handout. His buckskins are filthy; his face is disfigured by whiskers and grime. Admittedly, the hero of "Northwest Passage" must have been a bit rumpled by his adventure—but M-G-M should realize that Robert Taylor can be rumpled into losing the rest of his fans.

Lunched with Major, the famous caricaturist who recently published a book containing his many drawings of movie celebrities, and quizzed him about the reactions of his stellar subjects. Are they apt to resent his pencilled satires? "Well," Major laughed, "They have very little excuse for complaint. I make it a point to be kinder to them than I am to non-professionals whom I draw." I said something about stars being thin-skinned and drew a surprising contradiction. "You misunderstood," said Major, "the stars themselves never object to ludicrous caricature. It is their fans who want to crucify me!"

The "Dead End" Boys are hitting a new high on the "Angels With Dirty Faces" set. They started proceedings by giving Director Michael Curtiz a "breakaway" chair, nearly electrocuted the producer for a gag, persuaded Pat O'Brien to accept a loaded cigar—and are now standing about wistfully planning new deviltry. The only person on the set who is exempt from their persecution is Jimmy Cagney. Jimmy, an Eastsider himself, knows how to handle such situations. The first time the "Angels" got playful, he batted them around a bit. And those kids worship the ground he walks on. Spare the rod....

Met Eddie Hart in a Boulevard oasis today and heard a report on the financial condition of one of his fellow bit players. "Poor guy," sighed Eddie, "he's had a long, tough pull of it. But he's back on his feet again. The finance company took his car yesterday!"

RED CROSS PLANS ELABORATE PRESENTATION FOR HEROINE

Dr. John Wehrly, chairman of the Santa Ana Chapter, American Red Cross, today announced the chapter has received a certificate of merit from the American National Red Cross, for Virginia Dee Williamson, a member of the junior life saving service, for the courageous rescue of young William Erskine Jones on last Oct. 11, at Newport Beach.

It will be recalled that the boy and several other children were playing on a barge when William was accidentally struck a crushing blow on the head by a handle, and knocked unconscious into 15 feet of water. Miss Williamson saw the accident, plunged after William and using her life saving training she brought the unconscious boy to the top and on to the barge. Emergency first aid was given until a physician could arrive. William was taken to the St. Joseph hospital for treatment of a fractured skull and fully recovered.

Reception Is Planned
Miss Williamson was a member of a Junior Life Saving class taught last summer by J. Martin Clark, Balboa. She was examined by Miss Margaret Glenn, also a Red Cross chapter examiner, and

HISTORIC S. A. CANYON HOME TO BE SPARED AS DAM RISES

Situated on a hill in Santa Ana canyon is one of the few old adobe houses still in existence in Southern California.

Battered by years of rain and wind, the old adobe stands as a relic of the days when California was in its infancy. Located near the banks of the Santa Ana river, Casa de Cota, as it is called, will be completely surrounded by water when the lake forms in Santa Ana canyon following construction of Prado dam.

Through a strange quirk of fate it will be one of the few structures spared when the waters start backing in the canyon from Prado dam. In the March issue of The Quarterly, published by the Historical Society of Southern California, Helen S. Giffen, in an article titled "Some Two-story Adobe Houses of Old California," relates something concerning the background of Casa de Cota.

Associated With Yorbas
"This old house is closely associated by ties of blood with the Yorbas of Orange county," Miss Giffen said in her article.

"Ynez Yorba, daughter of Don Bernardino, married Leonardo Cota in 1842, and as a wedding gift from her father, received a league of land with a house which had been built by Don Juan Bandini in 1841, on the Rancho Jurupa, which extended for 20 miles along both sides of the Santa Ana river.

"To enter the abandoned Casa de Cota is to disturb the field mice and ground squirrels which have adopted the ruined rooms as their own.

"One may clamber over piles of fallen adobe bricks to inspect the three rooms which comprise the lower floor; but prudence forbids exploration of the second floor with its fallen roof and rotten planks, for the fate of the home of Dona Ynez and Don Leonardo is sealed in the howling of the wind and the pattern of the rain."

Hatfield To Talk At Club Meeting

Lieutenant Governor George J. Hatfield, Republican candidate for governor, will be the speaker at the regular meeting of Santa Ana Kiwanis club at noon Wednesday at the Masonic temple. It was announced today by President Maurice Enderle.

Stanley Kurtz of El Modena will entertain with vocal selections. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Kurtz, Allison C. Honer will be program chairman for the day.

PET TALKS

—By Mrs. T. J. Neal—

Dogs in America are never allowed in churches. Different in England and Scotland where colts and farm dogs often attend church with their masters. One of the reasons for this is that the church is usually miles closer to the shepherds pastures than home, and the dog is needed directly after service. These dogs seem to like the idea of attending church and are always ready to go.

Some people are superstitious enough to believe that if one sees his canary bathing and preening himself in the evening, it will rain the next day.

Away back about 1917 a hungry, nondescript little terrier was wandering around on the streets of Paris. An American boy, feeling sorry for the tired little animal, picked him up and carried him home. In time this boy went to war and took the puppy with him.

The dog, known as Rags, became the mascot of the First division. He was wounded in the Meuse-Argonne battle while delivering an important message. It is not known what happened to the boy but the dog, with one eye gone and deaf in one ear, was brought to America. He died recently in Silver Springs, Md. A movement is now on foot to raise funds for a monument to his memory. Veterans of the First division will remember Rags and what a prominent figure he was, right up to the front lines, whenever the division went into action.

Did you ever notice that most Negro families have a dog hanging around their house and that these dogs are usually of mixed breed origin? Perhaps this is a relic of Southern atmosphere. Very few Negroes, if any, ever have become interested in the breeding of pure-bred dogs.

SEVEN MISHAPS SMASH RECORD

Seven traffic accidents in Santa Ana during the weekend, with eight persons injured, set a record for the city which has not been equaled for years, it was revealed today. Yesterday at 2:20 p. m., cars driven by John D. Scott, 31, Fontana, and Grace L. Johnson, 33, 232 Cypress avenue, Santa Ana, collided as Scott drove north on Main and Mrs. Johnson, south on Main as she sought to make a left turn onto First.

Suffer Cuts, Bruises

Those injured include Mrs. Thelma Scott, 27, cut about face and body and injured leg; Barbara Ann Scott, cuts and bruises; Warren Roy, Orange, cut about the eye, and Mrs. Johnson, skinned knee. Mrs. Johnson had been drinking, according to examination of a doctor, but she was found not intoxicated.

Mrs. Anita Prussing, 329 East Pine, pedestrian, was cut about the shoulder at Fourth and Main streets early yesterday as her neighbor, Edwin Parker, 328 East Pine, was driving east on Fourth and making a right turn onto Main, and struck her, according to Officers Francis Norton and Burnette Lane.

Boy Taken Home

Three boys were injured in automobile accidents. Edgar Hart, Tustin, was making a left turn onto First and Main last evening, when his bicycle and a car operated by Zella Mae Gardner, San Bernardino, collided. Officers William Nielsen and W. H. Heard reported. The boy was taken home in the Brown and Wagner ambulance after suffering back injuries.

Dale Lacy, 13, 609 West Fifth, and Ronny Delodge, 514 West Fifth, suffered shock while riding double on a bicycle in front of 518 West Sixth street, Saturday night. They collided with a parked car registered to Francis Bent, Route 2, Santa Ana, according to Officers Norton and Lane.

Drivers Get Tickets

The same officers reported none injured yesterday at 1:20 a. m. when a car driven by Tony Hernandez, 205 Daisy, collided with one driven by Ethel McKeeth, 933 West Pine, as Mrs. McKeeth made a U-turn in the 1600-block of West Fourth.

After a car operated by F. Fontes, Lakeview, collided with

GROWERS MAY FILE PROTESTS

Orange county orange growers will have a chance to protest in person against proposed changes in estimated weights of citrus fruits suggested by railroads as a new basis of computing freight rates, it was learned at the Interstate Commerce Commission today, according to a special dispatch to The Register from Washington, D. C.

The commission will hold a hearing to obtain data on whether the proposed changes in estimated weights are justified, or whether they are unreasonable and unlawful.

Date Is Changed
The railroads filed, effective July 23, 1938, new schedules containing rates based on increased weights of citrus fruits, as one of numerous plans of the carriers to increase freight rates generally. Protesters from citrus fruit growers and shippers all over the country, caused the commission to postpone the effective date of the new tariff schedules to February 23, 1939.

Increases in estimated weights on oranges, as proposed, are as follows: California and Arizona—from 78 to 84 pounds per box; Texas—from 85 to 96 pounds per box; and Florida—from 90 to 100 pounds per box.

Date and place of the hearing will be announced later, it was learned.

YOUNG MAN FACES CAR THEFT COUNT

John Henry, 19-year-old transient, who was arrested by Newport Beach police on a grand theft charge Friday night, one hour and a half after G. W. Bassett Jr., local service station operator, reported his automobile stolen, was arraigned Saturday before Justice Kenneth Morrison in Santa Ana justice court.

Henry was ordered to appear before Judge Morrison tomorrow at 10 a. m. for preliminary hearing. The car was returned to Bassett Saturday. Henry assertedly stole the Bassett car from its parking place on Seventh street, at Main, beside the Bassett service station. The ignition keys had been left in the car.

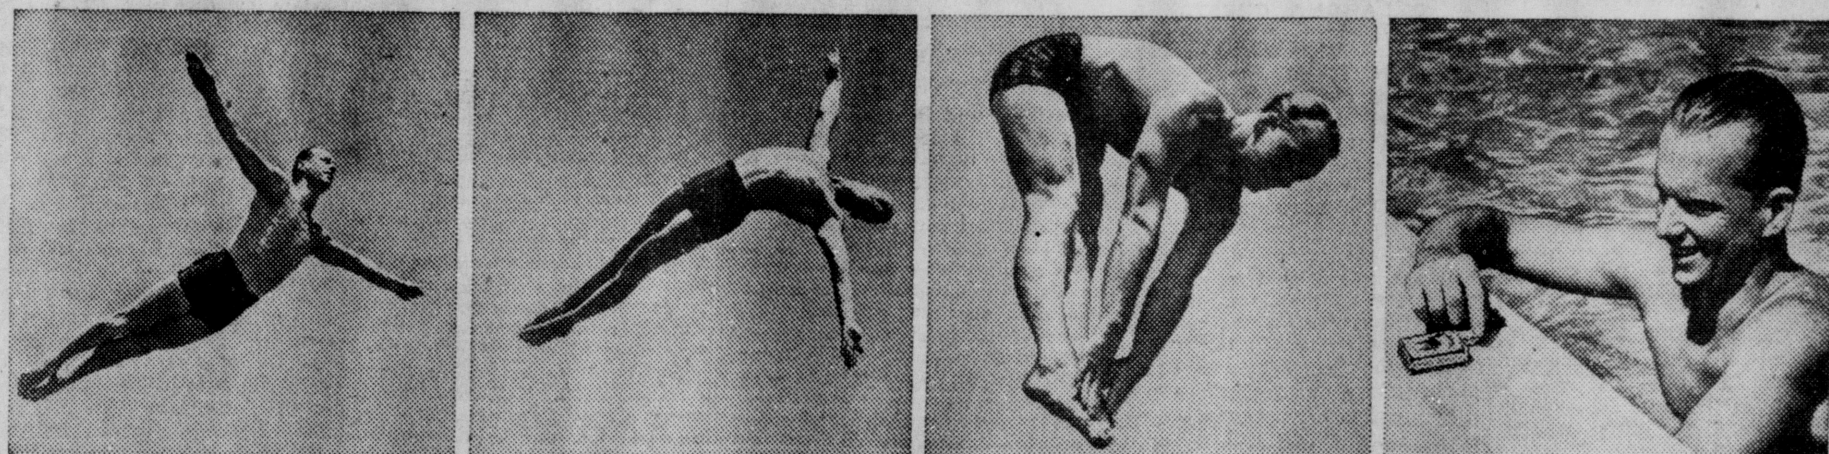

Hoosier Frolic Set for Sunday

Former resident of Indiana will hold their semi-annual picnic and reunion in an all day meeting next Sunday at Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles. It was announced today by Goldie Young Land, publicity chairman.

County registers and souvenir badges will be supplied by the committee. A program that will include music and brief speeches will open at 1 p. m.

MISS BERRY TO SPEAK

Miss Kay Berry will be the speaker at a Townsend meeting at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at Townsend hall, 509 West Fifth street. Ice cream, cake and coffee will be served as refreshment after the meeting.

Marshall Wayne pauses for a moment to answer Elvora Greenlaw's question on his choice of a cigarette.

Tobacco growers know "inside" reasons for preferring Camels

These planters tell what they know about Camel's finer, more expensive tobaccos

"At the warehouse sales," says Leon Mullen, experienced planter, "Camel buys the choice grades of tobacco. That's the reason why most of us men who grow and know tobacco smoke Camel cigarettes. We certainly appreciate the difference in the tobacco Camel buys."

"Almost every one of my fine baskets of tobacco went to Camel buyers last year," says G. A. Langley, who knows tobacco growing from every angle. "Better tobacco means better smoking," he adds. "That means Camels to me—and to most other growers too."

Alton Barnes, a planter who has grown and graded many a fine crop, says this about Camels: "Year after year the choicest lots of my tobacco have gone to the Camel buyers. Naturally, we growers select the best tobacco for our own smoking. So we choose Camels."

"I know from experience that Camel buys choice tobaccos," says Mr. Cecil Claybourne, veteran planter. "Many's the time they've paid more to get my finest lots of tobacco. Yes, most of us planters smoke Camels. We sure find a difference in their finer tobaccos."

Birthday Party Based On Snow White and
Seven Dwarfs

Playmates of little Miss Patricia Holland who were bidden to share her birthday joys Saturday afternoon, especially enjoyed the theme of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs which Mrs. P. K. Holland applied to party plans at her home, 421 East Seventeenth street.

Games planned for the children included a peanut hunt in which they scurried about among the trees and flowers of the pretty garden. Prizes in all the games were small figures of the beautiful fairy tale. The same quaint figures were arranged on the table from which a circus birthday cake with four candles was served with animal cookies and Neapolitan ice cream. The children enjoyed their refreshments out in the garden where so many of the games were staged, but returned to the living room to watch Patricia open her many birthday packages.

Mrs. Holland was assisted in entertaining her little daughter's playmates by her mother, Mrs. Z. A. Koons. Children present were Jackie James, Barbara Keller, Barbara Thompson, Mary and Peggy Vernon, Cherie Ward, Wayne Woods, Margaret Yantz, Santa Ana; Lois Coburn, Gardena; Darlene and Jimmie Dobbins, Walnut Park; Sharon Lee Prange, Long Beach; Larry Lutz, Anaheim; Jeanne and Richard Waywood, North Hollywood; Gwendolyn and Phyllis White, Atascadero; and Duane Holland of San Diego, here to spend the week-end with his little cousin.

Auld Lang Syne Group
Has Annual Picnic

Always an anticipated event among members of the Auld Lang Syne club, the annual mid-summer picnic of the group was given a delightful setting late the past week, in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Burns Chaffee, Long Beach.

Sharing the reunion with Dr. and Mrs. Chaffee were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Hill and Mrs. Edith Lane, Long Beach; Mrs. Jennie Johnson, Long Beach; Mrs. and Mrs. Joe Lovell, Miss Percie Head, Mrs. Virginia Dixon and small daughter, Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Oldfield, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chaffee, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schmitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harper, Mrs. Catherine Reburn, Mrs. Josie Nichols, Mrs. Mina Newsom, Miss Vesta Newsom and Mrs. Lila Mitchell, Garden Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Small, La Habra Heights.

INFORMAL SUPPER

Boasting a name that is almost larger than itself, "Tundridge Wells-On-the-Driveway," the clever penthouse home of Miss Helen Johnson at 801 1/2 North Sycamore street, was scene of a gay little affair Friday night, when Miss Johnson served one of her famous Italian spaghetti suppers.

Her guests comprised the Misses Dale Hawley, Marian Parsons and Lucille Swain, and after a leisurely enjoyment of the supper menu served to the accompaniment of colorful pottery, the four went out on the star-lit roof, to discuss the formation of a little supper club. Miss Arlie Legates, who was to host the party, was absent, having been called to Fresno on account of injuries sustained by a friend in a motor accident.

Dinner Honors
June Graduate
Of West Point

Quite a military air has prevailed for the past few days in the Frank Sawyer home, 1322 Durant street, where Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer and their daughter, Miss Margaret Sawyer, have been entertaining their nephew and cousin, Lieut. Ted Sawyer of Pawnee City, Neb., and a group of his friends.

Lieut. Sawyer and two of his traveling companions, Lieut. Frank Sturdivant and Lieut. Douglas Frankham, were members of the June graduating class at the United States Military Academy at West Point. The three young officers have been accompanied by John Patton of Hamilton, Ontario, Can., on a general tour of the United States.

All departed today for different destinations. Lieut. Sawyer will be stationed at Fort Sam Houston, and his two brother officers at Randall Field, in Texas. Mr. Patton will return home to prepare for resuming studies at Queen's college in Ontario.

Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer complemented the group of young men with a dinner party at Danvers, including on the guest list in addition to Miss Margaret Sawyer, one of her U.C.L.A. friends, Miss Dorothy Walter of Hollywood, a sorority sister in Alpha Delta Pi; Miss Barbara Davis, also an Alpha Delta Pi of the Berkeley chapter, Miss Marian Brownridge, Miss Lucille Cook, the four visitors, Lieut. Sawyer, Lieut. Sturdivant, Lieut. Polhamus and Mr. Patton and Harold Dike of Redlands.

Following the enjoyable dinner hour in this city, the party motored to Balboa to enjoy dancing at the Rendezvous.

Thursday of this week will bring the departure of Mr. Sawyer and Miss Sawyer for the east by automobile. The former will continue to Cleveland, Ohio on business, but Miss Sawyer will remain in Pawnee City, Neb. to attend the wedding of her cousin, Miss Jane Sawyer. Mr. Sawyer will rejoin his daughter for the wedding and then will return home. Miss Sawyer will remain for a longer visit in Pawnee City and with relatives in Kansas, and will return home by train, stopping for a short visit in Phoenix. She will resume her studies at U.C.L.A. in September.

tablespoonfuls. Hot Crab Meat: delicious, now that it is plentiful and so fresh. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a wide skillet, add to the butter the juice of a large lemon, some salt and pepper. Toss a pound of crab meat in this sauce until nicely heated (family may have tartar sauce, but not the diet). Beet Greens: They look appetizing and go beautifully with fish dishes: cook tops and beet root separately, chop, combine and sauté with vinegar, butter, sugar, salt and pepper. Green Peas: Just because they complete the color scheme (cook them with a stalk of fresh mint and a dash of sugar).

Mrs. Hyde's Alaskan
Travelers Return
From Tour

Arriving home late Saturday evening from her Alaskan outing, Julia Ann Hyde (Mrs. Charles W. Hyde Jr.) reported an unusually enjoyable trip into the north country.

Mrs. Hyde took a party of some twenty travelers on this season's tour, returning to Seattle where the party disbanded, some to return by automobile with stops at different scenic points, and some coming south by train. In the Orange county group were I. C. Golden, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Armstrong, the Misses Florence Aiken and Ethel Froeschle, of this city; J. A. Burns, Orange; Mrs. Bertha Meyer, Olive; Mrs. William Whisler, El Toro, and Harry Handy, Villa Park.

The party encountered nothing but fine weather on the entire trip, and had the good fortune to have an excellent view of Mount McKinley, a sight denied the members of last season's party who shopped through Alaska and into the Yukon by Mrs. Hyde. Such animals of the north as a black wolf, caribou, a golden eagle, moose, and Polar bear cubs were glimpsed, and Mrs. Hyde is hoping that she succeeded in getting motion pictures of the wolf, which had just struck down a mountain sheep when the travelers glimpsed it before it dashed for cover.

Informal Supper Hour
Shared by Members
Of Country Club

Shafts, daisies, banking the supper tables last night at the Country club, smiled a welcome to guests who dropped in to enjoy the hospitable plans of the Harold Nelsons and Mrs. Claude and Hester Olevier, the week's supper hosts.

The usual informality prevailed, with some of the members lingering to enjoy further associations at the clubhouse, and others leaving to fill other engagements. While mid-summer vacations are in effect, the party crowds at the Country club do not reach the size of those at other seasons, but the same charm is apparent in arrangements and the air of greater intimacy is one of the charms.

Next Sunday evening, the William Stauffers and the William Pennan will be hosts. Mrs. Penn is chairman for the month's social events. Her responsibilities extended to the past week's bridge table, when many hostesses entertained at luncheon in advance of the afternoon's bridge play. Mrs. Lewis Moulton, Mrs. George Parkerson, Mrs. Milton Poppett, and Mrs. Bennie Osterman were hostesses for the afternoon, and were assisted by Mrs. A. G. Flagg, who poured tea, and Mrs. Guy Gilbert.

Mrs. Poppett, Mrs. Howard Rapp and Mrs. Parker were among those entertaining at luncheon. Bridge prizes of the afternoon went to Mrs. Rapp and Mrs. Guy Gilbert of the club membership, and Mrs. A. M. Gardner, a guest.

Past Noble Grands

An enjoyable day was shared late the past week by members of Torosa Past Noble Grands' association, who were entertained at luncheon by Mesdames Edna Kinsella, Laura Kesemann, Irene Lancaster and Eleanor Pickel, in Mrs. Kinsella's home near Orange.

Flowers from the home gardens were used to brighten the linen-spread small tables where luncheon was served. Mrs. Adah Spencer presided over the afternoon business session, during which plans were completed for a picnic luncheon to be held August 13 in Santa Ana park.

Present with the four hostesses were Mesdames Bertie Launsbach, Pearl Louck, Martha McKee, Leona Talbot, Vada Pankey, Frankie Johnson, Jean Tremble, Adah Spencer, Blanche Chandler, Alice Tolhurst, Ethel Brown, Maude Letz, Mary Cooper, Martha Vandewalker and Minnie Squier.

Many friends of the Musicks have joined in making her Southern visit pleasant for Mrs. Calif, and the courtesies have included outings of all kinds. Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Musick took their guest to Irvine park for a gala al fresco breakfast. Other guests were the James Musicks and small daughter Martie Jo, the Herschel Musicks and daughters, Leila and Gracie, and the three sons of the Leonard Musick home, Billie, Bob and Jack Musick.

GAY BREAKFAST EVENT

Lovely Gardens Offer
Setting for
Fifty-Fifty Gayeties

Those beautiful gardens of the S. P. Kraemer jr. home on Kraemer Drive, Placentia, again were the scene of a gala event yesterday evening, when Southern California Fifty-Fifty club members gathered for an annual box supper.

The elaborate games equipment which the garden offers among its manifold charms, gave full opportunity for club members to follow their preference as to whether they should enjoy badminton, archery, ping-pong, horseshoe pitching, or any of a number of diversions.

Boxes prepared by the feminine members of the party, were made festive with the most original of decorations, which lent zest to the interval during which they were auctioned off. As partners were grouped for enjoyment of the supper hour, a band of strolling Mexican musicians seemed the final charming touch planned by the Kraemers.

In the party with the hosts were Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Bruning, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Norton, Messrs. and Mesdames LeRoy Burns, Earl Crockett, Ralph Culley, Ed Farnsworth Jr., Leland Fliley, Buddy Forster, Heber Fowler, Bill Grafton, Wayne Harrison, Riley Huber, Ross Ingram, Ewald Lemcke, Lawrence Mitchell, Elton McCoy, Bob Reddington, Ralph Sampson, Bert Thomas, James Tuma, Earl Beebe, Tom Mitchell, Messrs. Our Children

VISITING CAMP

A visit to the camp where the children are staying for the summer is a pleasant duty that parents look forward to each season. The Director does not always look forward as happily, however, to that visit. He hopes mother will not come until Junior has settled down. It is his first season and his first prolonged absence from home. If mother comes on Sunday, three days after opening, Junior will be torn between two loves. If mother really wants Junior to be with her, the end is in sight. Junior will cry; mother will soothe him and explain to the Director, "You see he is so young, yet. Maybe next year." But the Director knows better. He knows that just one more good boy has been spoiled. The Director hopes against hope that the visiting parents will not come laden with provisions enough to lift a siege. Absence makes the heart grow fonder. Mother remembers how Son loves chocolate brownies and bakes enough for the "tent." Also how he likes gumdrops, chewing gum, doughnuts, fruit cake, cheese in tins, also sandwiches in the making. "Boys do enjoy a midnight steal, you know."

The Director does know. He knows too, that his job is to undo ten months of mistaken eating, poor routine, self-indulgence of all sorts and send home a sturdy, handsome child, clear-skinned, clear-eyed candid looking and bronzed, something like the Apollo of the museum of Rome. And he wonders how he is going to get hold of this consignment of food without hurting anybody's feelings, and saving his own skin. Few campers settle into their tents before the end of the first ten days. Experienced campers are set at the end of a week and going strong, but the beginners take more time. The time schedule is new to the child's body and it must become adjusted to the new rhythm before the camper can be at ease. To set this healthy rhythm, absolute regularity, no exceptions, is the rule. Hours are rigidly observed, and infractions of the code are noted and disapproved severely in all good camps. Then along comes mother, rarely is it father, but he does appear in this role now and then. "I'd like to take Son to the village to-night. There's a show on at the hotel and I know he would enjoy it so much." That would shatter the work of days. If the Director is the right sort he says NO, firmly—regretfully perhaps, but firmly NO.

One lady made such a request and when the Director said "I'm sorry, but the regulations are that no camper leaves the grounds except on camp business, with his group and Counselor, and never to any hotel entertainment."

"All right, I'll take him home with me. I didn't know he was going to jail," said mother. When the news was told to Son his eyes opened wide in dismay. "Go home? Who said so? Did my father say so? Mother? Why? Say, you just tell her I said I was staying. I came here just to forget that stuff. And you can't find me, understand, when you come back to get me. I don't want to be bothered. Please make her understand." Don't bother the children, or the Directors, or the rules committee. Camping is a serious, education experience and needs to be left to perfect its work. Be a cooperative visitor or stay away.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply. (Copyright, 1938, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

DRIVE CAREFULLY -SAVE A LIFE-

INTERNATIONAL ETIQUET

Did you read about it? The exchange of speeches when Russia's new Ambassador to Germany presented his credentials to Hitler was utterly devoid of the customary expressions of burning affection and mutual devotion. There was almost a touch of chill in the air. The whole thing was completely lacking in sentimentality. The two didn't even kiss.

Things are coming to a pretty pass. Before you know it these modern diplomats won't even be bothering with touching gloves first; they won't even be waiting for the bell.

DARING STATESMEN

Pictures of Italian cabinet ministers and high public officials being made to leap through rings of fire and over rows of bayonets like circus horses present a curious ideal of qualifications for public service and statesmanship.

Now there is no reason at all why the statesman should not be healthy, and every reason why he should be. A sound mind in a sound body, and all that sort of thing.

And yet, to be reasonably healthy a man need not be a combination between Joe Louis and the daring young man on the flying trapeze. Washington was a healthy man. Andrew Jackson was a pretty tough border captain, but he might not have passed the test of a high jump over a row of upright bayonets.

Theodore Roosevelt, who came close to killing himself while President by indulging in a long forced ride with cavalry to test some new equipment, would have been closer to the present Italian ideal than any other American statesman. T. R. preached the strenuous life, and did his share of chest-thumping in his time.

His successor, Taft, with his comfortable roundness, could scarcely get beyond a short round of very mild golf, and to picture him leaping through a hoop of fire or impaling himself on a row of bayonets is a melancholy thought. Harding, Coolidge, Hoover—none of these would make the grade, and of course Franklin D. Roosevelt can't jump at all.

America must look like a strangely washed out race according to the standards now being proposed in Europe. Still, Joe Louis did all right against Schmeling, and the American Olympic teams seem to have held up their end fairly well in recent games. Moody and Budge look pretty good in international tennis, and in general American athletes do not look conspicuously inferior to those of other countries.

Our mistake, it would seem, has been in not putting the right abilities in the right places. We ought either to elect Johnny Vander Meer president, or start Secretary Hull training for the 220 high hurdles.

WORDS OF CONFIDENCE

Daily it becomes clearer that what we carelessly call peace in Europe and most of the world is no peace at all. It is merely an armed breathing spell between wars, an agitated armistice whose conditions are only a little better than war itself.

France, which in the 1840s abolished the death penalty for spying in "peace" times, has re-established it.

France, which had a peace-time army of about 600,000 before the World war, has announced that by 1940 she will have at least a million men under arms at any given moment.

Now there probably is no great importance in the fact that France has gotten in step with most other European powers in making death the penalty for peace-time spying. It is a small thing, in a world where human life has become cheaper and cheaper throughout the present century.

But as one new development piles on another, making what we call "peace" nothing but a less active kind of war, our senses gradually are dulled as to what is being lost.

To get a perspective on the World war today, go back to 1912, in those funny old days before radio broadcasting, swing bands, and the wholesale bombing of women and children.

The Hague conferences were still in the people's mind, and a great hope lay before the world. A contemporary writer described the work done at the Hague in these terms:

"Looking back upon this brief summary of the work of the two Hague conferences, we must admit that the past at least is secure. The alleviation and prevention of warfare's former horrors, its restrictions within narrow limits, the protection of noncombatants and neutrals from its ravages, the assertion of principles and the establishment of practices for its prevention and for the government of justice, such were the great achievements of these two epoch-making events in the world's history. There they stand in all their undying luster . . ."

And then came the World war, and then the Russian Civil wars, and the Riff, and Spain, and Ethiopia, and China.

It is 26 years since the optimistic words above were written. And we have little reason to be proud of what has happened to that bright dream of a decent, sane world order, dreamed so long ago in innocent 1912.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON
World Copyright 1938
By King Features Syndicate Inc.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Don't be fooled by the pained paternal tone of Mr. Hull's note to Mexico. He is aroused and meant more than he chose to say. Withdrawal of the good neighbor policy will follow unless President Cardenas comes around fast to an appreciation of the fact that he must pay for confiscated American property with something more than worthless I. O. U.'s.

The sharper situation is evident in the inside incidents which led up to the state secretary's public stand for neighborly responsibilities and the principles of international law.

This was not the first note Hull has sent to Cardenas on the subject. None of the others have been made public. No reference has been made to them officially. But, in all, there were about 4 notes and 6 more friendly dispatches, urging amicable settlement.

Cardenas neglected to observe the usual proprieties of these confidences, according to inside evidence available here. He sneaked them among his own political leaders and even passed some along to foreign agents in Mexico to build up his story that the New Dealers in Washington did not care whether he took American property or not. That is why Hull wrote this published note.

The document bore only Hull's signature, but the complete backing of the American government was behind it. Mr. Roosevelt was in on it. So was Chairman Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee.

They had no fear of how it would be received elsewhere in touchy Latin America because the y sounded out leading diplomats here beforehand. All agreed that there was no question of "American imperialism," but a simple proposition of requiring payment for what was taken.

Officials outside the state department are inclined to place some personal blame for the current situation upon American Ambassador Joseph Daniels. They claim he does not speak Spanish, does not understand the Latin temperament. What the U. S. needs in Mexico City right now, they are saying, is another Dwight Morrow or a Joe Kennedy.

Withdrawal of the good neighbor policy may not sound like much but it would be serious to Cardenas. Few here believe he will let the situation get around to that.

It would be negative action but it would hurt, for instance on silver and tariffs. Authorities here can remember an occasion not so long ago when the Mexican government needed money badly and placed some heavy tariffs to get it. This government overlooked the opportunity for serious complaint, simply because of sympathy.

Note—Where you first read that this government would change its Mexican policy and "ease around in the end to the position which the British assumed in the first place," was right here, on May 28.

Latest inside dope on the reciprocal trade agreement with Britain is that it will come through next month in a limited form. It will not cover all the things originally hoped for, and the promise of broadening it after the November elections probably will be offered. The text of the question is what the treaty will do.

The British wanted reductions in textiles and woollens. The New Dealers did not dare to grant any just before elections.

Correction: On July 11, the erroneous statement was made in this spot that National Labor Relations Boardman Donald Wakefield Smith had "rarely approved a board decision unless the CIO had an organization interest in it." Fact is, D. W. Smith has dissented but once in the history of NLRB and then favored AFL. The other Smith on the board, Edwin, is the one with the unbroken record of siding with CIO. (He dissented 9 times in the 80 cases decided.)

Washington newsmen, grateful that Mr. Roosevelt fired TVA Chairman Morgan leaving but one Morgan on the board, now are petitioning for removal of one of the Smiths from NLRB.

The victory of ferocious Congressman Jerry (Let me at Hague) O'Connell in the Montana primary is being hailed as less of a New Deal victory within the New Deal than elsewhere. An important fact is his strongest opponent, a rank newcomer in politics, did not file until the last day. Also two years ago, O'Connell won his primary by 13,000 votes; this time by around 5,000.

Most political observers here do not consider that Senator Wheeler's seat is in any danger for 1940.

Best bet (in congressional circles) for the Cardozo vacancy on the Supreme Court is Circuit Judge Sam Bratton of New Mexico, despite all you hear downtown about Felix Frankfurter and Ferdinand Pecora. Hill-men have reason to believe Mr. Roosevelt will have to give the appointment to the west.

The Stuff Supposed to Make Things Run Smoothly

Fellow Citizens: That cotton picking is hard, back-breaking work, I know from experience. Unless one has been practically raised in a cotton field and taught to the tune of a cotton stalk, he would do well to pick enough cotton in a day to sit down on.

Until recently there has been no method of harvesting the crop except by the centuries old method of hand picking, but after years of futile effort by countless inventors, the Rust brothers have finally succeeded in developing a fairly satisfactory mechanical picker. The world is startled, realizing its possibilities of revolutionizing the cotton industry. Will it be a Frankenstein monster which will deprive thousands of people of their livelihood? Mr. Sharpless has asked if I would deny it.

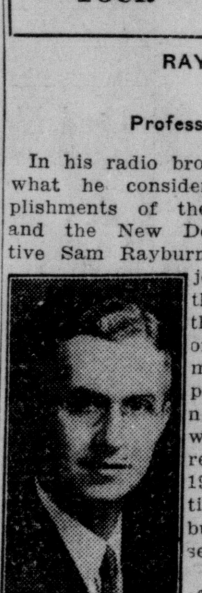

Who has the ability to look into the future and see what is going to happen before it happens? I certainly haven't; but, having had some experience, both as a picker and a grower, I can suggest a few facts to think about. At cotton picking time the grower is faced with a serious problem. Being such slow work (it takes a good picker five days to pick a 500 pound bale) an army of pickers, many times those who grow the crop, is required to pick it. The picking season being comparatively a few weeks in the fall and early winter, it is essential that the crop be gotten out as quickly as possible to avoid loss by weather damage. The boys must not be picked if they are at all damp so only during nice dry weather can the picking be done. Local help is a drop in the bucket; the highways and byways, shantytowns and city slums are scoured for unemployed people, transients, drifters, bums and anyone willing to go into the fields and pick cotton for a fraction of a cent a pound. Parents keep their children out of school and whole families migrate to squalid cotton pickers camps and children and all pick in the fields. At that our own people, white or colored, are never sufficient, consequently thousands of Mexican laborers are imported every year. I wonder if this condition is what some of us are afraid the mechanical picker will change.

Hand picking costs the grower at the very least, by using the cheapest Mexican labor, $12 a bale. The cost of picking this last year, using the Rust picker, at the rental rate of $20 a day, was less than $5 a bale. This $7 or more saved was the equivalent of that much higher price for his cotton. What is the grower going to do with this extra money, eat it? Which do you favor—for him to buy more American made goods with it or for him to pay it to imported Mexicans to take back to Mexico after a few weeks work. The very first effect of the machine before it ever turns a wheel is to give employment to the American workmen who made it.

Argentina is placing orders for them. There's room for reflection in this. We have already handed to South American countries, on a silver platter, an enormous share of our world market by trying to set an artificially high price for our cotton so they have no difficulty in raising and selling it cheaper than our price. They are even shipping it into this country by shiploads.

Russia, that great country supposed to be devoted to the rights and interests of the workers, has bought the right to unlimited manufacture of these machines for use in its own fields. Would Russia be anxious for them if they would deprive her workers of employment?

In his radio broadcast, outlining what he considered the accomplishments of the 75th Congress and the New Deal, Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, majority leader of the house, said that in the light of these government acts and policies he could not understand why the business recession came in 1937. The question Mr. Rayburn asks deserves an answer.

The recession of 1937 grew out of the preceding series of events, and these reflected the struggle between those forces contributing toward business expansion and those fostering a recession. The forces of expansion were of two principal kinds—those aiding a sound recovery in business, which had started in July, 1932, and those contributing to an unsound and artificial expansion in business, such as the government's deficit and currency inflation policies, and its other program for boosting prices. Operating against these two sets of expansive forces was that great variety of disturbing, depressive and confidence—destroying policies of the government. The list is long, but rather well known by this time.

Until about April, 1937, the forces contributing to business expansion, sound and unsound, had the upper hand. By March, 1937, the undermining forces had gained such strength that the scales seemed delicately balanced. On April 2, the President made his fateful attack on high prices, despite the fact that the price level was considerably below that of 1926, to which the New Dealers had repeatedly assured everyone that prices would be raised. The average of prices Business men had been encouraged to expect 1936 prices again, and certainly, in many instances, were acting accordingly.

The President's attack on high prices in April, 1937, seemed to have bought the right to unlimited manufacture of these machines for use in its own fields. Would Russia be anxious for them if they would deprive her workers of employment?

RAYBURN AND THE DEPRESSION

be the last straw needed to tip the scales downward. Business men hesitated; confidence gave way; the recession began. The chronology of events and the behavior of the major indexes of production and prices, seem to provide conclusive evidence regarding the matter. Of course some act or event always proves to be the final or crucial factor in tipping the scales, provided a sufficient number of other forces are working in the same direction. In the case of the 1937 recession, it seems quite clear that the New Dealers, and business men in their attempts to conform as well as they could to the government's various policies and to the apparent economic trend) had prepared the way for the recession in numerous ways over the years 1932, 1933, and 1934, and that the President himself had the misfortune to be the one to supply the final determining factor when he attacked high prices on April 2, 1937.

It is amazing, consequently, to hear the President, in his broadcast of June 25, place the responsibility for the recession on business leaders, and say that the government made a mistake "of optimism in assuming that industry and labor would themselves make no mistakes." The trouble lay in the opposite direction.

Despite the highly unpredictable policies of the government, business men made the mistake of relying too much upon what seemed to be a central theme in this government's policies as supposed, revealed by the President's repeated statement that prices should be raised to the 1926 level, "and raise them we will." If business men relied upon anything at all, beyond expecting their daily dose of tongue lashings and anti-business legislation, it was upon the New Deal's assertions that prices would be raised to the 1926 level. But in relying upon this announced policy, they were too optimistic, and they paid dearly for this excessive reliance upon what they had supposed was at least one consistent element in this government's economic policies.

primitive machine, originating in India, was used, which would gin about 5 pounds a day. A little improvement on that was the McCarty gin which, worked by two men, would gin about 4 pounds of lint an hour. The same apprehension was felt about the Saw Rust picker but from then on the world looked to this country for its cotton. The acreage increased like wildfire, spread over the south and west through Texas and Arizona; and even into California now produces thousands of bales every year.

El Whitney's Saw Gin gave birth to the largest export industry in the United States. The Rust cotton picker may be the salvation of this same industry. Time alone will tell the story.

General Hugh S.

JOHNSON SAYS

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Will Mr. Roosevelt be a candidate for a third term in 1940? Almost every commentator has written on this recently — so I'll take a try. It is the most frequently discussed subject wherever two or three are gathered together. Yet it is foolish question No. 3,000,000,000. The answer is perfectly obvious. "If, as the time approaches, he is absolutely certain that he can get away with it—nothing could prevent him. If there is an even chance that he may be beaten—nothing could persuade him."

What have been the reasons why no President has had a third term? There are only four. First, a real conviction that it is bad for democratic institutions—Washington, Jefferson and T. R. (in 1908). Second, weariness or illness—Jackson and Coolidge. Third, the century-and-a-half-old precedent—in part, all Presidents save Washington. Fourth, a fear of defeat—Grant and Wilson.

As to the first reason, if Mr. Roosevelt ever had a conviction that a third term for himself would be bad for democracy, he has never expressed it. On the contrary he has hinted something to the effect that the recently immensely increased powers of the President would be dangerous to democracy in any other hands. Nobody who knows the President well doubts that, in some respects, he sincerely regards himself as a sort of Messiah, divinely anointed to save what he regards as democracy in a world in which it is threatened on every front—and to lead suffering humanity into the green pastures.

Why shouldn't he think so? He is exclusively surrounded by a kind of official Hallelujah chorus which chants that thought into his ears through praises and thanksgivings in every waking moment. His immense personal popularity, and the adoring multitudes that follow his progress through the land in a kind of semi-religious procession, inspire such thinking. Finally, there is the intellectual bankruptcy of his opposition and the complete absence on the horizon, in any party, including his own, of a figure approaching him in glamour. With all this, he would be less than human if he thought his re-election would be bad for democracy. No leader in history in similar circumstances has avoided the suspicion that God invented him.

There is no weariness, illness or disillusionment about F.D.R. No other President so revelled in his job—or made it pay him better. It has increased the wealth, precedence and security of his whole family, even to his "sister" and his cousins and his aunts—or at least his uncle. His sons have married richly or otherwise been advanced to affluence. He delights riotously in all this and is having the time of his life. Weariness as a cause for his retirement is out.

Respect for the precedence of Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson? If there is one pious caper in which Mr. Roosevelt glories, it is in breaking precedents. He seems to go out of his way to find them to shatter. He boasts about it, and chuckles every time he does it, like a naughty little boy heaving a brick through the banker's window. This chance to break the biggest precedent of all would start rather than stop a third term attempt.

There remains only one barrier. Mr. Roosevelt wants, above all things, to go down in history as a great President. That honor would be hurt if he tried to do what the other great Presidents condemned and failed. The fear of that alone could possibly stop the attempt. He is one of the ablest politicians in history. It is far too early for him to put his unprecedented political judgment to work on that hazard. When he does, and if he decides he can surely make it, he will run—and be elected, because if it is not a cinch, he will not run.

old hard times, as well as booms of prosperity in the past centuries that none of the wise men of their day ever thought of solving the tax and economic problems by taxing everybody two per cent and paying all the old people over 60 year of age 200 shekels per month," and it is strange that those same "wise men of their day" did not think of using telegraph wires, telephones, electric lights, automobiles, radios, neon signs, motion pictures, frigidaire, airplanes, typewriters, computing scales, cement roads and thousands of things undreamed of "in the past centuries."

Somehow I imagine Mr. Phillips knows all this and is simply looking for his own amusement. He is also amusing me with his almost fathomlessly deep and profound efforts to bring light to groping pensioners, who have long ago passed the problem indicated by the above query.

Of course Mr. Phillips refers to the Townsend Plan, but surely he must know it does not pay "all the old people over 60 years of age 200 shekels (dollars) per month. He knows it pays only those who qualify and even then, no one is obliged to receive $200 per month. They can apply for any amount not exceeding $200 per month.

I trust this explanation will not prove wearisome to Mr. Phillips.

DEBTORS WITHOUT CREDITORS

In an article under the heading of "Nation's Affairs," written for the enlightenment of newspaper readers, Earnest Minor Patterson, president of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, makes the statement that "for every debtor there must be a creditor."

This statement, on the face of it, seems to be axiomatic. But under the present kind of money is it true? Mr. Patterson, in the article, reasons that what one person borrows someone else must lend. And consequently the lender has the income that the debtor pays.

It would seem to the writer that where Mr. Patterson errs in his reasoning is that when the government or anyone borrows money there is now no promise to pay back anything of value in itself. All that a promise to pay money now means, is to deliver a given amount of pieces of paper on which is printed a term called "dollar." This piece of paper called a dollar is redeemable in other pieces of paper with no value in themselves back of them. The government can change the definition of this word "dollar" as it desires. The changing of the meaning of the word "dollar" changes the obligation of every financial promise of the government but that of every citizen.

The banks and the government constantly are changing this thing called money as to its exchange value. They create it out of thin air by writing figures on their ledgers. It thus being created out of confidence it is destroyed by lack of confidence.

What became of the creditors in Germany, Russia, and every country that had financial obligations payable in money of no value in the money itself? The obligation was paid off but the creditor did not get what he gave to the debtor—money with the same purchasing power.

The statement that for every debtor there must be a creditor would be true when the creditor transfers to the debtor actual money with value itself or wealth and does without the use of this wealth himself.

But the statement is confusing and misleading when the lender loans something without a given fixed value itself.

The bankers under our present system loan credit that can be traded for wealth the borrowers get with this credit. The borrower gets the wealth from reduced purchasing power of everyone who has credits or promises to pay money as a result of this increase in bank credit for every debtor.

LEST THEY FORGET

Stoutly the president and his spokesmen insist that WPA workers and others on the federal government pay roll shall vote only as conscience dictates. Santa Claus asks for no reward. Spending in the public interest must not be allowed to influence political action.

Yet anyone who reads the addresses Mr. Roosevelt has been making across the country cannot fail to be impressed by the number of times he emphasizes how much money his administration has been pouring into the states and districts he visits.

And our own Columbus correspondent, touring Ohio for a study of the pre-primary situation, points out that one strong advantage Senator Bulkley has over his Democratic opponent, George White, lies in the local improvements federal money has financed. For these the senator can, and Mr. White cannot, claim some measure of credit.

When billions are spent in a campaign year, and man is strong enough to prevent their expenditure from exerting political influence. Not all the protestations of Administrator Hopkins, Secretary Ickes or the president himself can avoid it. How serious the effort is at times to prevent it may be seriously questioned.

"I am happy and proud of how much the federal government has been able to help Kentucky and other states," the president told his race track audience at Covington. In six years, he continued, the government has "allotted to Kentucky in new kinds of federal expenditures for relief, work relief, public works, the education of youth, farm rehabilitation and crop benefits, approximately $280,000,000."

At Oklahoma City the next day the president reverted to the same theme, now localized to the audience before him. "I am told by Senator Thomas," he said, "that the Works Progress (WPA) program in Oklahoma is leaving permanent monuments all over the state and that in the matter of new or improved school houses alone this state, in co-operation with WPA, has made a greater record than any other state."

Nevadans were told by the president at Carlin that the population of their state is entirely too small, and that his administration is trying to improve it through the development of its water and other natural resources.

The president at San Francisco Friday devoted his address chiefly to international peace, enunciating the wholesome doctrine that America's part is to encourage any reasonable agreement which might end the present race for dominance in arms. However, he did not forego the opportunity to remind his hearers of their blessings received by grace of the administration and the federal treasury.

He was speaking of the Golden Gate International Exposition and the help the government had given it. "In addition to the allotment by Congress of $1,500,000, I am told that you have received nearly $5,000,000 in the form of useful work paid for from WPA funds, and nearly another $2,000,000 in equally useful work paid for from public works funds; in other words, a total federal assistance of more than $8,500,000."

This, of course, takes no account of the federal money spent in California generally and in California cities—in common with other states and cities. Voters are asked not to let their ballots be influenced by what the administration has done for them individually and for their communities. However, it is not intended that they shall forget these favors!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
